Erin Gardner of Erin Bakes

Erin Gardner began her career in sweets as a pastry chef in numerous New England kitchens, most notably at Boston's legendary Locke Ober. After a sugar flower class in NYC, she struck out on her own and opened Wild Orchid Baking Co. Finding her passion in sugar flowers, Erin finally felt at home baking, designing, and decorating cakes. After opening her shop, Erin competed and won on Food Network's Sweet Genius, and received nods from both Martha Stewart Weddings and Brides Magazine as one of the top wedding cake pros in the country. Brides also included a cake of Erin's as one of America's Prettiest Wedding Cakes. With baby #2 on the way and increased writing and teaching demands, Erin decided to move on from Wild Orchid Baking Co. and launch her blog, ErinBakes.com. There, she shares fun and accessible recipes and techniques that combine her fine pastry skills and modern cake designs. In her second book, Erin Bakes Cake, she shares her versatile and delicious cake, filling, and frosting recipes along with innovative decorating techniques using candy, cookies, and chocolate! Beyond her own blog, Erin is also a regular contributor for The Cake Blog, Craftsy's Cake Decorating Blog, Darby Smart, and American Cake Decorating Magazine. When not playing with cake, you'll find Erin enjoying the gorgeous New Hampshire lakes region and seacoast with her husband and kids. Erin's cakes have been featured in Brides, Martha Stewart Weddings, Oprah.com, Town & Country, The Knot, OK Magazine, The Huffington Post, Grace Ormonde, HGTV's DIY Network, TLC's Parentables, American Cake Decorating, Cake Masters, and on many cake decorating and wedding blogs.
